Back to Basic, What is Digital Marketing?

Now that we've gotten introductions out of the way we wanted to start our ULTIMATE GUIDE with quickly covering the basics of digital marketing!

Digital marketing includes all the marketing efforts that use the internet or an electronic device such as a cell phone or tablet. Businesses need to take advantage of digital media such as search engines, social media, email, and other websites to connect with current and potential customers.

Why is Digital Marketing Important?

With the increasing use of technology and the internet, digital marketing has now become more and more vital for your business and brand awareness. An increasing amount of businesses are making their way online via websites and social media, and more! Digital content and marketing are now becoming so common that consumers now expect and rely on it as a way to learn about brands. If you are seeing your competition online more than your own business, you'll know it's time to embrace digital marketing. Digital marketing has so many options and strategies, every business approaches digital marketing differently depending on its needs, budget, and resources. A huge plus with digital marketing is that you get to utilize tools like analytics to monitor the success of your marketing in real-time more than you could with traditional marketing!

Types of Marketing

SEARCH ENGINE OPTIMIZATION

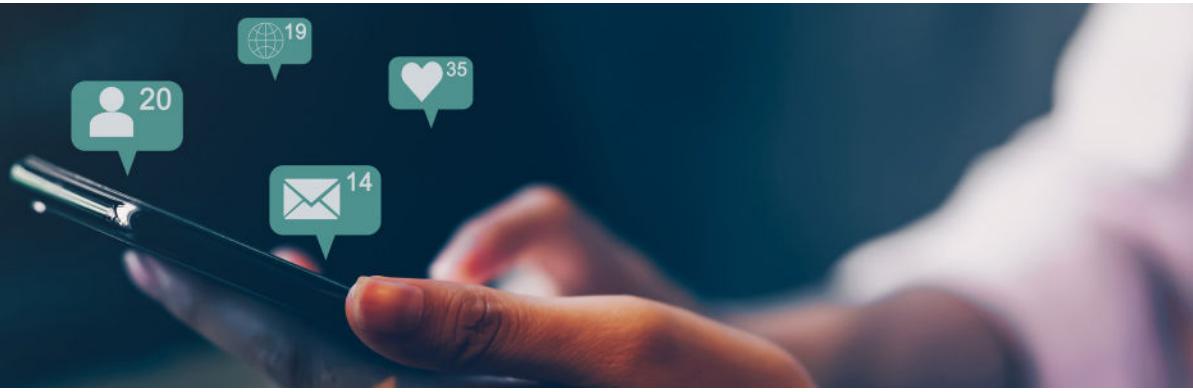

SEO is the process of optimizing your website to “rank” higher on search engines like Google, increasing the amount of organic traffic a website receives. Within SEO, there are a number of ways to approach SEO including...

On-page SEO: This type of SEO focuses on all of the content that exists “on the page” when looking at a website. By researching keywords you can answer questions for readers and rank higher on the search engine results pages (SERPs) those questions produce.

Off-page SEO: This type of SEO focuses on all of the activity that takes place “off the page” when looking to optimize your website such as backlinks. The number of other websites and blogs that link to you also affects how you rank for the corresponding keywords. By networking with other businesses, writing guest posts on their websites/blogs that link back to your website, and generating external attention, you can earn the backlinks you need to move your website up in rankings.

Technical SEO: This type of SEO focuses on the backend of your website, and how your pages are coded. Image optimization, inline and minimized CSS and Javascript, and more are all forms of technical SEO that can increase your website’s loading speed – an important ranking factor to search engines such as Google.

SOCIAL MEDIA MARKETING

Social media marketing involves promoting your brand and content on social media channels to increase brand awareness, drive traffic, and generate leads for your business. The channels you can use in social media marketing include Facebook, LinkedIn, Instagram, Snapchat, and Pinterest.

CONTENT MARKETING

Content marketing is the creation and promotion of content for the purpose of generating brand awareness, traffic growth, lead generation, and customers. These include blog posts, ebooks, and infographics.

PAY PER CLICK (PPC)

PPC is a method of driving traffic to your website by paying a Google or website every time your ad is clicked. One of the most common types of PPC is Google Ads, which allows you to pay for top slots on Google's search engine results pages at a price "per click" of the links you place. Other channels where you can use PPC include: Paid ads on Facebook, Sponsored Messages on LinkedIn, and Affiliate Marketing.

VIDEO MARKETING

Video is such a versatile and engaging format that connects with a huge audience and is also easy to share across multiple platforms. Consumers like it because it's easy to digest, entertaining, and engaging, and marketers like it because it can give a potentially huge return on investment (ROI) through many channels. There are plenty of different types of videos that are effective at content marketing such as explainers, interviews, product reviews, testimonials, and more!

EMAIL MARKETING

Businesses use email marketing as a way to communicate with their customers. Email is often used to educate, promote content, provide discounts, and announce events. The types of emails you might send in an email marketing campaign include blog subscription newsletters, follow-up emails to website visitors who downloaded something, customer welcome emails, holiday promotions, and tips and tricks!

MARKETING TIP: Younger generations expect a more personalized experience when interacting with brands.

Importance of a Marketing Plan

We have covered A LOT in these first four pages, and the education doesn't QUIT! Now that we have set the foundation for digital marketing let's talk about what you are really here for, MARKETING PLANS!

Every business utilizes marketing in different ways to engage their target market. A Marketing Plan is a comprehensive document that outlines your overall marketing efforts, including external and internal marketing, budget, and goals. A Marketing Plan is a blueprint that outlines how your business will implement a marketing strategy to achieve business objectives including sales targets or customer acquisition.

Here are 4 reasons your business needs a marketing plan!

Reason 1 – A Marketing Plan Maximizes your Marketing Budget and ROI

We all know when we go to the store and browse we tend to overspend, compared to going to the store with a list and a plan on what we need to get.

If you are spending on marketing because you heard your business needs this, and you read that your business needs that, and someone approached you about social media assistance so now you are paying for that to... you ARE NOT making educated decisions, creating accountability between you and your vendors, and have no way of evaluating what is working and what isn't.

A component of a marketing plan involves setting a marketing budget. According to the U.S. Small Business Administrator, startups and small businesses should plan to spend about 7% to 8% of their gross revenue on marketing and advertising. If profit is falling below $5 million annually, the U.S. Small Business Administration suggests bumping marketing spend up to 10% to 12% of gross revenue. However, setting a marketing budget involves more than calculating a percentage of your gross revenue.

Your marketing budget should take into account all aspects of your business, including internal and external marketing, print and digital marketing, the launching of new products or services, customer service, client retention, and more! Writing down each key component of your marketing will help you see the full picture of your efforts and ensure you are not neglecting any key investments into your business's marketing.

Reason 2 – Marketing Strategy

Have you heard of the ‘purple cow’ by Seth Godin, a famous American entrepreneur, marketer, author, and public speaker? Shortly, you want your business to be a “Purple Cow”, which means being unique and remarkable in a world of homogenous competitors. Without getting outside the box, you will always struggle to get noticed. The other element that is emphasized is that you need to milk the Purple Cow once it is “discovered”, and begin looking for the next one. Nothing remains remarkable forever – and innovation and transformation are keys to growth and success long-term. A great reminder that good isn’t good enough, that success must be followed by renewed innovation, and that remarkable eventually becomes ordinary as the bar rises and others copy.

We say all this to not only emphasize the need for marketing, but for marketing strategy. Becoming a purple cow takes a strategy that includes researching your competitors on their past and current efforts, and using this information to further set yourself apart. This strategy will take a while to develop, and could include A/B testing, brand development, analyzing your customer journey, etc.

Reason 3 – Being Proactive Instead of Reactive

A strategic marketing plan helps you to identify new trends, avoid potential threats, and capitalize on future opportunities. Through brainstorming, innovation, and creativity your business will be able to discover and implement marketing in a proactive manner rather than being reactive and constantly having to pivot every time a change occurs.

Reason 4 – Creating Consistency

A marketing plan also increases the consistency of your branding and messaging. When we help our clients with their marketing plans, we create campaigns surrounding business goals focused on reaching their target market through consistent messaging, branding, and look and feel. This helps your marketing better resonate with your customers, and hopefully keep your brand top of mind!

Do's and Don'ts When Creating a Marketing Plan

DO'S:

- Do make SMART Goals
- Do evaluate your target audience and plan your strategy around them
- Do create a SWOT Analysis
- Do evaluate your website and social media
- Do evaluate your target audience and plan your strategy around them
- Do focus on what your customers want and need
- Do implement a strong social media strategy
- Do make your marketing plans mobile-friendly

DON'TS:

- Don't forget to study your market
- Don't forget to update your strategy often, marketing trends are constantly changing
- Don't misuse multimedia
- Don't overthink your marketing, stay within your means you want
- Don't hire multiple Marketing vendors. Oftentimes businesses looking to improve their marketing will use multiple agencies in an attempt to save money but this just ends up costing you more of a headache and money in the long haul.
- Don't lose motivation.
- Don't get overzealous. It is ok to start small. If you set goals that are too big right from the start you are already setting yourself up for failure. Be realistic and reasonable with your marketing plan.

Marketing Tools We Recommend

Marketing is so multi-faceted (at least you want it to be in order to be successful) that it's sometimes hard to keep up with everything!

Thanks to the digital age we live in and the advancements in technology, integrations and analytics, there are a vast amount of tools out there for your disposal. That being said, we wanted to make that search for the perfect marketing tool a little bit easier for you by providing you with a short list of valuable marketing tools we recommend in a few areas. Trust us, your sanity will thank you for this!

SOCIAL MEDIA

I think by now we all see the value of having a great social media presence for our business, but we also understand it's hard to find time in the day to create valuable posts. That's why we suggest that if you are going to manage your businesses social that you set aside 4-5 hours a month to create a full month's worth of content and ideas and then schedule it out in one of these social media scheduling apps so you don't have to think about it again until next month!

Setting Goals

Setting marketing goals for your business is not only important but NECESSARY for success! When setting goals we suggest you set SMART goals. SMART stands for: Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Realistic, and Time-Bound.

Set time aside to think through each part of your business and identify what marketing goals you need in order to go and how you'll measure them. Here's how we work through each step in the SMART goal framework to set goals for integrated marketing efforts.

S FOR SPECIFIC

Define goals for both revenue AND for your brand.

The goals you define for your company – both for your specific marketing initiatives and for your company as a complex body - set the tone. They communicate what's a preference, what you hope to accomplish and ensure accountability.

It's crucial that when you're setting these goals that you're setting them both for revenue and the success of the brand.

M FOR MEASURABLE

Determine key performance indicators (KPIs). Defining success early on is crucial to estimate your ongoing progress. What criteria, or key performance indicators (KPIs), will you use to demonstrate that you've achieved success?

A FOR ATTAINABLE

Assess the ability to accomplish your goals setting marketing goals is the natural part. They are determining whether you can achieve what you've set before you is another story. You certainly don't want to set goals that are so steep you'll never accomplish them, or are so comfortable that they weren't worth setting in the first place.

Use data to figure out whether your goals are attainable.

R FOR REALISTIC

Verify that what you're proposing is practical. The Realistic SMART goal step provides an opportunity to chat with your team about whether the goals are realistic. Is your team up for the challenge? Do they think it can be done?

Once you've matched your goals and KPIs with actual time-sensitive expectations in the next step, you're ready to develop a useful, goal-oriented marketing strategy.

T FOR TIMELY

Designate short and long term marketing goals. How long will it take to reach the goals you've set forth? Match your goals to timeframes.

EXAMPLES OF SMART GOALS FOR MARKETING

- Grow leads by 5% via email newsletter conversions in the next month.
- Double our website traffic over the next 12 months by publishing 2 high-quality, targeted blog posts per week.
- Boost our Instagram engagement rate from 4% to 5% in 30 days by publishing 15 high-quality images and/or videos optimized with relevant hashtags.
- Improve our customer retention rate by 5% for the year by implementing cross-selling and upselling strategies and offering bundled prices.
- Boost our client retention rate by 25 percent in six months by conducting a customer listening campaign to learn where to add value for mature accounts.
- Boost our average open rate for our email marketing campaigns 10 percent by split-testing headlines.

<h1>T</h1>	Timely	When do you want to achieve this goal? Set a target date for your goal so you can successfully reach it.	Example: This goal should be met by December 30th of 2022.
<h1>R</h1>	Relevant	Why is this goal important to you and how is it going to impact your business?	List the ways that this goal will help your business.
<h1>A</h1>	Attainable	How can the goal be accomplished and what steps can you take?	Example: I will increase brand awareness by posting 2 times a week on Facebook and Instagram.
<h1>M</h1>	Measurable	Set goals that are easily trackable.	Example: Increase my business's followers on Instagram by 300 and Facebook by 200 in 3 months.
<h1>S</h1>	Specific	What do you want to achieve? Be clear and concise when setting goals.	Example: Increase my brand awareness through the use of organic social media posting and Google Display ads.

Goal Tracking

Tracking goals is an essential way to ensure you meet your business goals. If you do not track your goals there is no accountability. Here at Spotted Fox we like to use the following form to track our SMART goals!

What is my goal?

Break down your goal into monthly goals.

Now break down your monthlys goals into weekly goals.

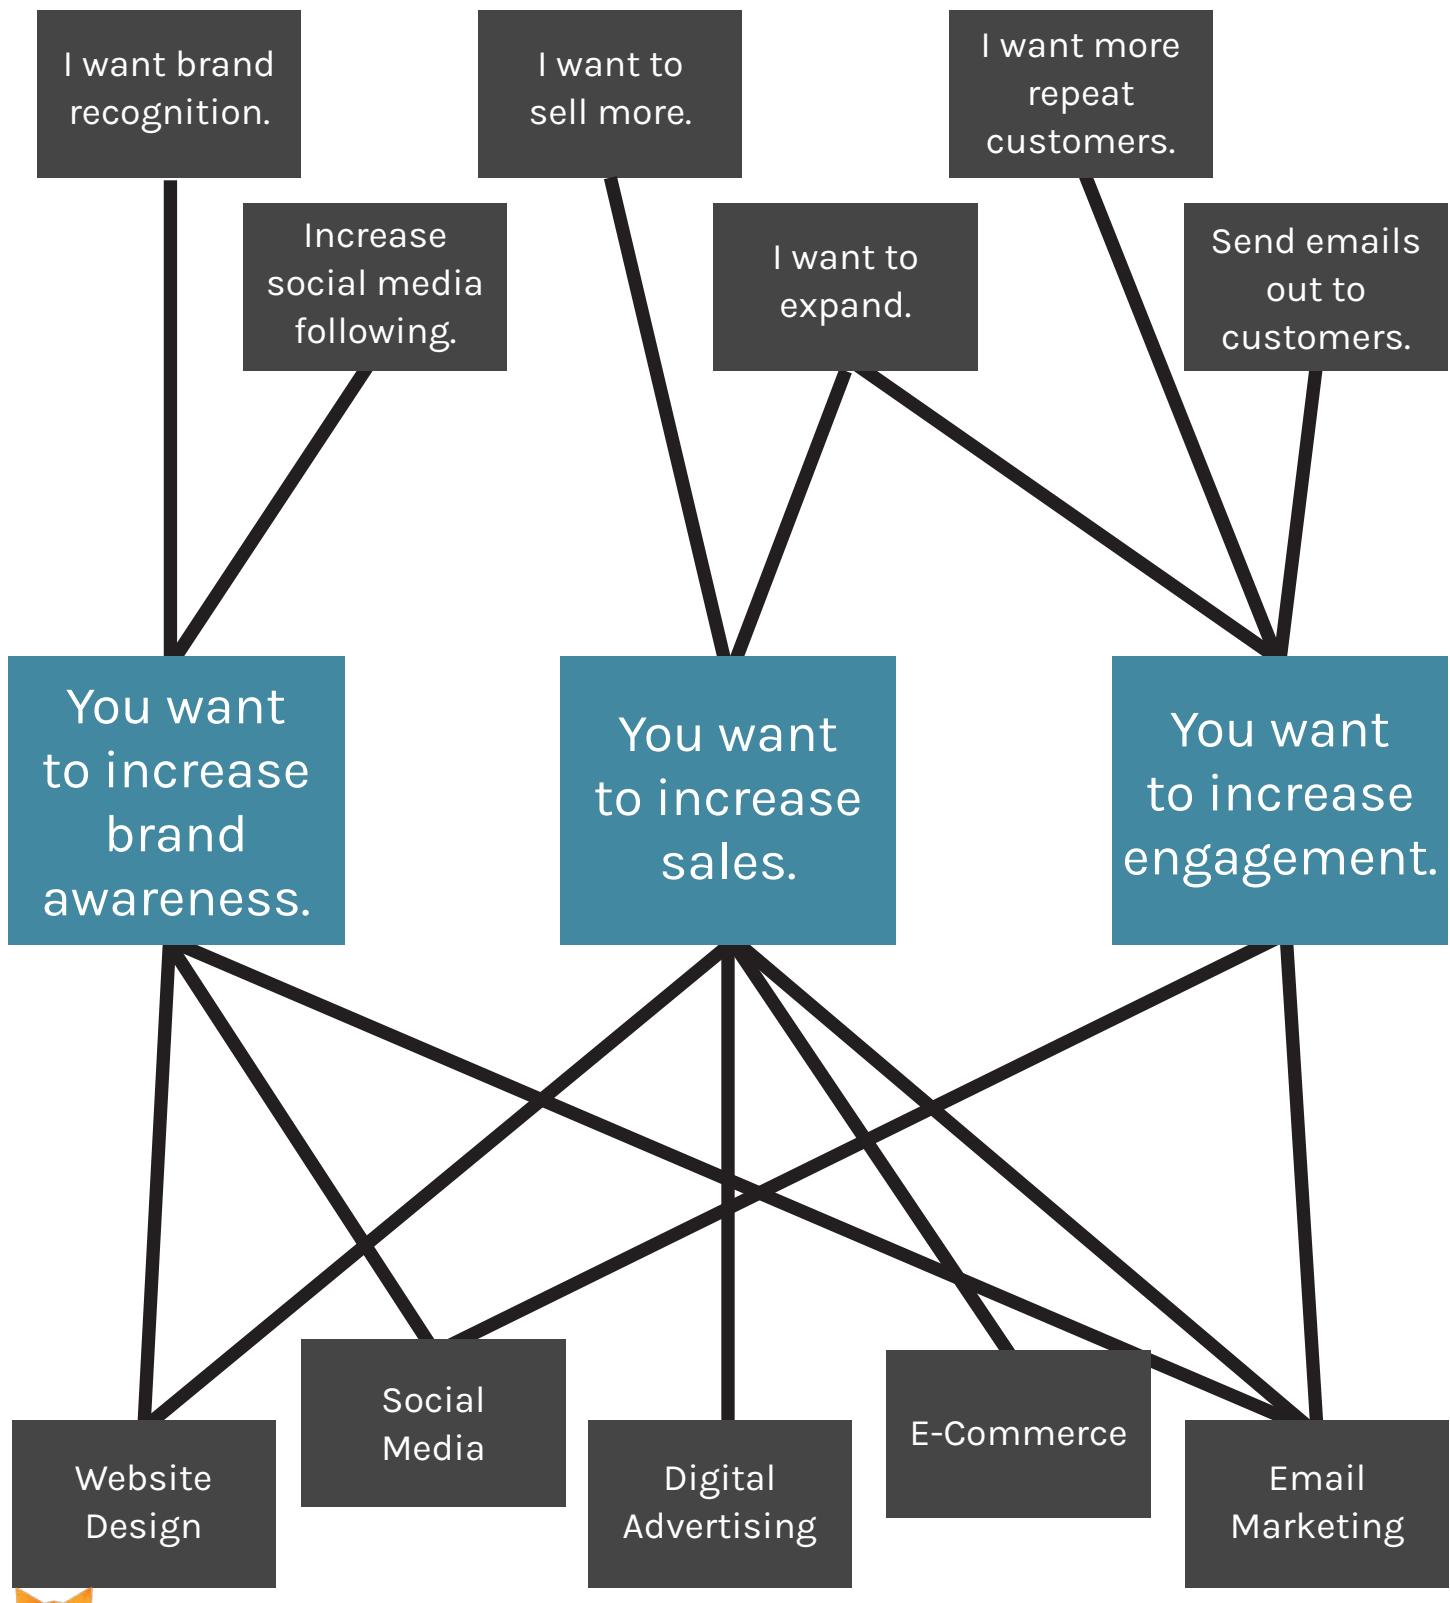

How are you going to track your progress?

When will you know you've achieved your goal?
